

Children and Trauma

Two Related Workshops on Practice Updates for Busy Professionals

Thursday, June 11, 2009
Rochester, Minnesota

Trauma and Self-Regulation in Children

Morning Workshop: 8:30 - 11:30 a.m. (Check in begins at 8:00 a.m.)

Children who have experienced trauma have difficulty with self-regulation, and may be misdiagnosed as oppositional, attachment disordered, or hyperactive. In the safety of secure attachments, however, children can re-process traumatic experiences and learn to cope with, adapt to, and overcome the effects of trauma; in other words, to be resilient. This half-day workshop will provide information on the assessment of the effects of trauma on children and guidelines for intervention. Case studies will illustrate key points.

Children with Sexual Behavior Issues

Afternoon Workshop: 1:00 - 4:00 p.m. (Check in begins at 12:30 p.m.)

Many children in social service caseloads have sexual behavior issues. Some of these behaviors indicate trauma related to sexual abuse and some do not. This half-day workshop will provide information on the differential assessment of children's sexual behaviors and guidelines for intervention. Case studies will illustrate key points.

The Presenter

Jane F. Gilgun, Ph.D., LICSW, is a professor in the School of Social Work, University of Minnesota. She has done research on child and family development for more than 20 years. She has specialized in understanding how children develop resilience after they have experienced trauma and other adversities.

Continuing Education Hours

Approval is granted for 3.0 continuing education clock hours for each workshop from the Minnesota Board of Social Work.

Registration Information

$50 for one workshop

$85 for both workshops

Registration information is available at www.cehd.umn.edu/ssw. You may complete the registration process online using a credit card or complete the registration form (found on this website) and return it with payment by mail.

Location

University of Minnesota Rochester

University Square

111 South Broadway

Rochester, Minnesota

University Square is the former Galleria Mall in downtown Rochester. A detailed map is available at www.r.umn.edu/map.

For More Information

If you have additional questions about these workshops, please contact Peter Dimock at the School of Social Work at 612-624-3227.