

Upward Bound 2008-2009 Fact Sheet

Upward Bound (UB) at the University of Minnesota's College of Education and Human Development (CEHD) is a federally funded, college preparatory program for low-income and/or educationally disadvantaged high school students. Upward Bound works with students on a long-term and intensive basis. Although all Upward Bound programs nationwide share a common goal--college preparation--each UB program is unique in its program design and in the services it provides to students.

The University of Minnesota is very large and incorporates many programs. Below is useful UB program information for students and parents. Use this information when calling the UB office. Don't forget to state who you are (name and relation to UB students), why you are calling, name of UB student, and the school your student attends. This information will assist Upward Bound to better serve you.
