Assistantships in OLPD

The department assistantships are highly competitive and based on merit. All department assistantships are awarded to doctoral students. M.A. and Ph.D. students not receiving a department assistantship often obtain assistantships in other departments (e.g., teaching assistantships in foreign language departments), offices (e.g., student life, financial aid, study abroad), or research centers (CAREI, ICI). For full consideration, students must have applied by December 1 before starting the program in the fall.

In what level of an assistantship are you interested?

.25 (requires 10 hours of work/week)       .50 (requires 20 hours of work/week)

For which semester(s) are you applying?

Fall only       Spring only       Both fall and spring

What special skills/experiences would you bring to an assistantship that would not be evident from the program application (e.g., computer/web, writing, spreadsheets, statistical packages, etc.)? Please be as specific as possible.
