The Tucker Center for Research on Girls & Women in Sport at the University of Minnesota is celebrating its 30th anniversary as the first center of its kind in the world. Join us in celebrating this noteworthy milestone on the eve of National Girls & Women in Sport Day.

Dr. Penny Wheeler, U of M Regent and former CEO of Allina Health, will moderate a discussion led by Drs. Mary Jo Kane and Nicole M. LaVoi on the origin, founding, and vision of the Tucker Center (TC), as well as insights into leadership succession. Groundbreaking research, community outreach, programming achievements and the impact of the TC around the world will be highlighted. The evening will culminate with a conversation among four generations of Tucker Center scholars and highlight the significant role and impact the TC continues to play in the rapidly changing landscape of sport for girls and women.
